

Connecticut Parenting Educator Credential

A Collaboration Between: Charter Oak State College and Connecticut Parenting Education Network

Preparing professionals in parenting education

What is the Connecticut Parenting Educator Credential?

The foundation of ANY parenting education system is the parenting educator. Like classroom teachers and social workers, parenting educators must be professional – and must be recognized as professionals. The Connecticut Parenting Educator Credential establishes consistent criteria for the knowledge, skills, and experience needed by all parenting educators. These educators include home visitors, trainers, facilitators, and parenting education coordinators.

The Connecticut Parenting Education Network (CT-PEN), a state-wide network of organizations and individual parenting educators, seeks to create a coordinated system of parenting education and support. Its goal is to strengthen and enhance parents' (or other primary caregivers') ability to rear caring, competent, and healthy children.

The Connecticut Department of Children and Families and the William Caspar Graustein Memorial Fund provided generous support to CT-PEN to engage partners, reach out to local parenting educators, and include parents in the development of a professional credential for parenting educators. CT-PEN's partners in this effort included the Parent Aide Coalition of Connecticut, Connecticut Family Resource Center Alliance, Connecticut Parents as Teachers, Connecticut Youth Services Association, Children's Trust Fund, Connecticut Commission on Children, University of Connecticut Department of Family Studies and University Extension, Charter Oak State College, Connecticut Chats-a-Course, and Quinnipiac University.

The Connecticut Parenting Educator Credential is issued through Charter Oak State College to applicants who have successfully met the requirements necessary to obtain the Credential at a specific level. The Credential acknowledges that, as a professional, you have obtained knowledge, experience, and competency in the core areas of knowledge for parenting educators and adhere to the CT-PEN Parenting Educator's Code of Ethics.

Membership in CT-PEN is required to apply.

Core Areas of Knowledge for Parenting Educators

The Credential is based on the National Extension Parenting Educators' Framework (NEPEF) which focuses on a set of priority practices for parents and serves as the basis for parenting educator skills and on the CT-PEN Parenting Educator's Code of Ethics.

Applicants for the Connecticut Parenting Educator Credential are required to document their knowledge by presenting evidence of the following:

All levels of the Credential require current membership in CT-PEN and the following:

- One research-based parenting education training in any one of the following curricula, depending on the ages of the children of families served:
 - Parents-As-Teachers – birth to 5, includes Home Visiting.
 - Building Family Futures – birth to school-age.
 - Strengthening Families – school-age.
- Completion of the non-credit, online course Fundamentals of Parenting Education. This course is required and will be a self-paced overview of the NEPEF and the CT-PEN Parenting Educator's Code of Ethics.

Levels 1, 2, 3 & 4 Require 12 credits or equivalent in each of the following areas:

- Lifespan/Human Development (e.g., Infancy, Childhood, Adolescent, Adulthood)
- Family Systems (e.g., Family Dynamics, Work and Family, Single, Divorced, and Blended Families)
- Group Process/Communication (e.g., Interpersonal / Family Communications, Theory of Group Management, Group Dynamics)
- Adult Learning Theory and Methods (e.g., Learning Theory, Managing Learning Environments; Engaged Learning)

Levels 2, 3 & 4 Require a College Degree

Degree majors /concentrations related to Parenting Education include: Parenting Education, Social Work, Behavioral Sciences (PSY/SOC), Education, Human Development, Family Studies, Child Studies, Counseling, Human Services.

Pathways to Meeting the Education and Training Requirements
